Aerospace Art Soars into Museum

ASAA 24th International Aerospace Art Exhibition at San Diego Air & Space Museum

SAN DIEGO, CA, June 8, 2010 - Seventy paintings, jury-selected from the finest aviation masters in the world, will hang side by side on the walls of the San Diego Air & Space Museum from June to September, 2010.

Aerospace artists and aficionados from all over the globe will fly to San Diego for the festivities of the American Society of Aviation Artists (ASAA) 24th Annual International Aerospace Art Exhibition.

ONE DAY: June 8, 1 pm Grand Opening & Unveiling
ONE WEEK: June 8 to 12 ASAA Global Forum
ALL SUMMER: June 8 to September 10 Museum Exhibition

After the Museum Grand Opening and VIP Unveiling June 8th, a week-long Forum provides a rare chance to mingle with dozens of artists from four continents, including Smithsonian muralist Keith Ferris, acclaimed aerospace master John Clark, and the award-winning Charles J. Thompson.

Veterans of Midway will speak about their historic experiences in recognition of the 68th Anniversary of the Battle of Midway. World record-holder pilot Jonathan Strickland and Victoria Hamilton, Exec. Dir. of the Commission for Art & Culture will participate in the Unveiling. Mingle with all renowned artists. A few surprises are in store.

The American Society of Aviation Artists is a non-profit organization founded in 1986 to bring together persons who share a love of art and aviation, and to affirm standards of professionalism, authenticity and artistic quality in art.
